About the Medical Waste Institute:

The Medical Waste Institute is a policy-making group within the National Solid Wastes Management Association (NSWMA) and the Waste Equipment Technology Association (WASTEC).

Our Members Include:

- Companies that transport and/or treat and dispose of hospital, medical, infectious, chemotherapeutic and pathological wastes
- Companies that make containers, treatment technologies, and other equipment for the medical waste market
- Companies that provide consulting, engineering, and legal services to the medical waste and healthcare industry

Concerned about new regulations? Have questions about compliance issues? Want to find cost saving techniques that will improve your company's bottom line? The Medical Waste Institute is your resource for finding answers to your medical waste questions.

Medical Waste experts determine course material for this conference, ensuring you that the issues covered are timely and relevant.

9:00 a.m. - 9:45 a.m.

Take Charge of Fuel Prices: Effective Risk Management

Unprecedented fuel price inflation and the extremely volatile energy markets present unique challenges to fleet operators. By effectively managing fuel price risk, operators can budget for a worse-case over a given time period and increase profit margins. Take control of energy prices and manage your risk.

Moderator: David Fink, Republic Services, Inc.
Speaker: Jamey Holland, FCStone Trading, LLC

9:45 a.m. - 10:30 a.m.

Pharmaceutical Materials: An Update

Medicines, controlled substances, and non-hazardous medical waste and their health risks if not properly managed are beginning to impact regulations. In this session, panelists will provide an update on regulations and the direction decision-makers are going. Focus will be placed on the Pharmaceutical Universal Waste Rule.

Moderator: Andrea Arredondo, Daniels SharpSmart
Speaker: Luisa Valiela, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency

E-Waste: New Laws, New Realities, Unique Considerations

E-waste has become a mainstream recycling issue. Many states are moving forward with new laws to manage these materials. These laws and their impacts on collection, processing, and disposal operations and the unique issues for health care facilities, such as patient confidentiality, will be discussed.

Speaker: Robert Johnson, National Association for Information Destruction

2:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m.

Differing Perspectives on Employee Training - What Role Should Technology Have in Your Program?

Good employee training programs often include electronic and web-based techniques as well as more traditional training methods. Medical waste and healthcare industry educators will discuss when to use these methods and how to integrate them into a successful medical waste training program at your facility.

Moderator: Selin Hoboy, Stericycle, Inc.
Speaker: Chuck McClellan, Stericycle, Inc
